IMPORTS INTO U. S. FOR 1913 WERE HEAVIER THAN ANY PRECEDING YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—According to the department of commerce, the foreign commerce of the United States made its highest record in the fiscal year 1913. Imports, both free and dutiable, were larger than ever before, and exports, both domestic and foreign, were also the largest on record. Imports were $1,813,000,000, against $1,634,000,000 in the fiscal year 1912, and exports were $2,466,000,000, against $2,204,000,000 in 1912.

The changing character of our foreign commerce is illustrated by a comparison of the figures of 1913 with those of earlier years. Imports show in recent years a much more rapid gain than exports. While imports increased but 27 per cent in the 20-year period from 1890 to 1910, they increased 113 per cent in the shorter period from 1900 to 1913. On the other hand, exports, which increased 67 per cent in the 20-year period from 1890 to 1910, gained only 77 per cent in the period from 1900 to 1913. Imports formed in 1900, 37.8 per cent, and in 1913 42.4 per cent of the total foreign commerce. Foodstuffs imported in 1900 aggregated $231,000,000, and in 1913, $406,000,000; manufacturer's raw materials imported increased during the same time from $276,000,000 to $635,000,000, an increase of $359,000,000 in the value of foodstuffs and raw materials imported during this period. On the other hand, foodstuffs exported during the period under consideration show a decline of $44,000,000 and raw materials an increase of $406,000,000, a net increase of but $362,000,000 in foodstuffs and raw materials exported, compared with an increase of $531,000,000 in foodstuffs and raw materials imported.

In manufactures, however, the growth in exports has exceeded that in imports. Imports of manufactures for further use in manufacturing increased from $134,000,000 in 1900 to $349,000,000 in 1913, and finished man-

Growth of American Cities

Outside of the census, the most reliable record of the growth of American cities is that given in the World Almanac. The Almanac's figures are estimates based on the best information obtainable, and are wholly immune to local pride or prejudice—as nearly impartial as anything short of an exact count can be.

Material for interesting reflections in the Almanac's estimates of city population on January 1, 1914, as compared with estimates for the same cities a year earlier, and with the census statistics of 1910 is found.

The country is credited with 64 cities, each of 100,000 or more inhabitants, a gain of 14 since 1910.

Cities which are credited with the largest increase, 1910-1914, are: New York, 326,936; Los Angeles, 230,802; Chicago, 208,142; Cleveland, 159,333; Detroit, 148,720; Philadelphia, 169,992; San Francisco, 83,088; St. Louis, 79,415; Oakland, 74,826; Toledo, 66,422; Pittsburgh, 66,095; Boston, 62,977; Newark, 52,531; Kansas City, Mo., 51,619; Birmingham, 47,315; Houston, 46,200.

St. Louis is still fourth city, but closely pressed by Boston and Cleveland, with Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco coming forward so fast they must be regarded as challengers for fourth place in 1920.

Los Angeles is credited with being the largest city on the Pacific coast leading San Francisco by 50,000. But the San Francisco urban district, including Oakland's 225,000 across the bay, and other suburban settlements, is still much larger than that of Los Angeles. Just as New York is now the largest city in the world, 5,500,000 inhabitants as against 4,500,000 in registration London. The population of the urban districts of each city is the center area. London, 7,200,000; New York, 6,500,000. St. Louis is Post Disband.
